THIS AREA in recent years, comparatively speaking, has shifted from a rural atmosphere in which everyone was involved directly or indirectly in agricultural or horticultural pursuits to a highly urbanized community where interest in computing and commuting attract more interest than the size of the current prune or apricot crop.

Those of us who in our growing up days were exposed to a small town atmosphere and its strong alliance with the outlying rural area or others who did their growing up on farms still have an ingrained sentimental 'down-on-the-farm' attachment that subdivisions, shopping centers, expressways and freeways will have difficulty erasing.

And there is another thing that always brings back memories, the distinctive odor that is often associated with certain types of agriculture or horticulture endeavors especially at harvest time.

We hastily admit that some of the odors would not be described as pleasant by any stretch of one's nose but one can become accustomed to them, especially if it was recognized that the smell had a direct relationship to production and the basic economy of the area.

NEWCOMERS to this area, for example, may feel that the "onion smell" that wafts through the still morning air quite often at this time of year could be something that they could very well do without.

We are inclined to agree that the onion odor does take a little getting used to. But after all these years of whiffing it we think we will miss it when the onion growers in the Gilroy area finally succumb to the subdivision bug.

To the uninitiated, that onion smell drifts when the wind is right the 30 or so miles from Gilroy where onions are grown abundantly.

And the odor is generally prevelant in the early morning hours before the gas buggies transporting their passengers on the commuting trail have had a chance to get into the aroma derby.

If we had a choice, we would take the onions. But, there again, our background is showing.

APRICOTS COOKING in the Sunsweet plant in Campbell is another source for a distinctive odor which to some may seem unpleasant but to others quite agreeable.

We have learned to like it. We will also miss it when it, too, will inevitably fade away and be replaced by something more urbanized in nature.

There are some, we know, who have been untouched with anything of a bucolic nature in their lives, and will prefer the urbanized scents to any agricultural fragrance.

But to us it means the passing of an era.

And from a nostalgic point of view, we are

First Masses in $350,000 edifice

New St. Lucy's Church opens Sunday

Next Sunday, Sept 3, for the third time in 20 years, parishioners of St. Lucy's Catholic Church, of Campbell will change their place of worship.

The Rev. John Lally, pastor of St. Lucy's, announced this week that starting next Sunday, Masses will be celebrated in the new $350,000 church edifice located just south of the church building that has served the parish for the past 10 years.

The current Mass schedule (7, 8:30, 9:45, 11:00 a.m. 12:15 and 7 p.m.) will be in effect.

Workmen this week were putting the final touches on the church that has been under construction for more than a year.

The sanctuary in the new church will have a seating capacity of 1200, twice as many as could be accommodated in the church that was built on Winchester Blvd. in 1957.

Prior to the building of the church on Winchester, St. Lucy's was located on E. Rincon. In 1947 the parish was "promoted" from mission status.

The new church building is of concrete masonry construction and there are no pillars or posts in the sanctuary. It has a wood roof featuring huge laminated clear span beams.

A 60-foot high carillion tower which houses the chimes is topped by a 15-foot cross and is separate from the main church building.

Another unique feature is that there is no choir loft as such. With the new liturgy changes in effect, the congregation joins in the hymn singing, so the choir is on floor level near the altar and baptistry.

The altar extends into the sanctuary and allows members of the congregation to be on either side of it as well as in front.

The new church is actually the third "unit" of the parish that has been constructed on the nine-acre parcel at Winchester and Kennedy.

First building was the school to house four classrooms, followed by the church. The school was then expanded to its present size and the old residence on the property was completely remodeled into a rectory.

Next to be built was the convent just off Kennedy, for the sisters who conduct the school. The new $350,000 church in which Masses will be said next Sunday is the last in the construction series.

The first unit of the school and the church built in 1957 were constructed while the late Father Denis Kennelley was pastor. Father Lally succeeded Father Kennelley in 1960. There have been only two pastors in the parish history.

St. Lucy's parish serves approximately 2500 families. (Or did before the formation of the new St. Thomas of Canterbury parish on READY THIS SUNDAY--Father John Lally, pastor of St. Lucy's, stands by the statue of St. Lucy's, patron saint of the parish. Masses for the first time this Sunday, Sept. 3, will be said in the new $350,000 church on Winchester Blvd.

PEWS TO BE FILLED--This Sunday, Sept. 3, has been the day long-awaited by members of St. Lucy's parish when Masses will be said for the first time in the new $350,000 church building. The sanctuary, pictured above, will seat 1200.

St. Thomas of Canterbury

New parish has Masses for first time Sunday

Four Masses were said in the Santa Maria Knights of Columbus Hall, 580 W. Parr, last Sunday when the new "westside" parish, St. Thomas of Canterbury, "officially" came into being.

The Rev. Paul A. Perlite, the first pastor assigned to the parish, was assisted at the services Sunday by his brother, the Rev. John Perlite, S.J. who has been at Alma College for the past year.

The new parish has been formed from four others in the area with the majority of parishioners (900 families) coming from St. Lucy's in Campbell.

The Queen of Apostles also furnished a number of parishioners and with a lesser number from Sacred Heart of Saratoga and St. Mary's in Los Gatos.

Masses are scheduled at 7:30, 9 and 10:30 a.m. and 12 noon on Sundays.

At final budget deadline

Councilman asks huge staff cut

Sweeping charges by Councilman Charles Rose that the City of Campbell was "overstaffed and overserviced" to the tune of more than $100,000 were labeled mere generalizations and "poor timing" by his four collegeaues Monday night, the deadline for setting the tax rate and adopting the budget.

By a 4-1 vote (Rose dissenting) the City Council on Monday set the tax rate at $1.27 per $100 assessed valuation (the same as it has been for the past seven years) and adopted the final budget of almost $2 million.

By law the budget and tax rate must be adopted by Aug. 31.

What also rankled Rose's fellow councilmen (Mayor Ed Rogers, Bill Smeed, Ralph Doetsch and Homer Hyde) as well as City Manager Bob Stephens was that Rose used the City of Saratoga as the basis of his comparison for his "overstaffed and overserviced" charges.

Rose also claimed that the level of services offered by the city were set by City Manager Stephens and his staff and not by the council. He maintained

WRONG TIME

The other councilmen took turns pointing out to Rose that during the lengthy budget study sessions in the spring and early summer would have been the time to discuss the economies and not at the final deadline.

They emphasized also that the budget presented was the most austere that could be developed under the circumstances based on the studies participated in by all councilmen, including Rose.

Councilman Doetsch was especially emphatic in pointing this out.

In an unusual audience reaction at this point, Jack Wade, 875 La Plata, who was attending the meeting on another matter, asked to be recognized.

Wade said while it was commendable for Councilman Rose to think of economies, he felt that the date of the final adoption of the budget was not the time or place to bring up the subject.

MANAGER ANSWERS

In answer to a direct question from Councilman Smeed, City Manager Stephens stated that the elimination of positions as suggested by Rose would seriously impair the city's progress and the city could not continue with the same level of services now offered. Stephens also added that to compare Campbell with Saratoga was grossly unfair as the two cities were totally unlike in their operations.

Councilman Hyde also wanted to know from Rose, if he had made a study of the duties performed by the personnel he wanted eliminated and how they affected the overall operation of the city.

Mayor Ed Rogers was especially resentful of Rose's statement that the other councilmen were merely "rubber stamping" the staff's recommendations.

In a heated exchange, Rogers claimed that Rose had no monopoly on sincerity. "You are undoubtedly sincere, Charlie," he added, "but you also must remember that we four al[illegible] e sincerely trying to do our best for the city."

In establishing his $110,120 figure in economics, Rose touched most of the bases at the city hall. The police department and the councilmen's salaries were notable exceptions

PUBLIC WORKS

But it was the public works department that Rose felt that the biggest cuts could be made. He suggested the elimination of two junior engineers, two engineering aides, one street sweeper operator, a clerk and other personnel for a slash of almost $60,000.

He used as his base of how Saratoga operated its department.

He also suggested the elimination of one fireman and the clerk in the fire department, the city manager's administrative aide and the assistant planner in the planning department.

He also felt that the city's investment in the Chamber of Commerce

Editorial

Involving citizens

"Grass roots" response is probably an overworked term. But, at the same time, it is an apt description for the involvement and reaction of the citizens in basic community problems.

Ideally, of course, it would mean that people are interested in all phases of their local government. In practice, however, it generally means that only a certain segment of the citizenry become involved in a particular problem affecting their specific area.

Yet these isolated "grass root" responses are important to the city as a whole. In a community such as Campbell where "home rule" is one of the basic reasons for its existence as a city, it is paramount to know how the people feel about specific issues.

We have long maintained, however, that "total involvement" in their community by the citizens should be the goal, in addition, to just expressing interest in specific area situations. Wholehearted support of the $3,600,000 capital improvement bond issue by all sections of the city would be an example of what we mean by "total involvement".

We find no fault with interested citizens from a specific area of the city descending en masses on the City Council or Planning Commission in protest or support of a particular issue.

In fact we encourage such activities on the part of the residents, for we consider it a healthful and stimulating part of local government.

We keep ~~hoping~~ that the interested citizens will expand their interests and get involved in citywide problems with the same degree of enthusiasm.

The bond issue election on Oct. 24 will give the residents from all sections of the community such an opportunity. We sincerely hope they will take advantage of the situation.

During the years we have been exposed to the workings of the city government. we have been long aware of the importance attached to evidence that is presented at meetings of official bodies indicating how the people feel about certain issues.

No better evidence, of course, can be presented than the people themselves expressing their feelings.

It does not necessarily mean that the official body always must adhere to the wishes of the delegation, for there can be extenuating circumstances, for city officials are responsible to the entire community and not just one segment of it.

However, in the main, action by the official city bodies should be pretty well predicated on the feelings of the people affected, for, after all, the officials do represent the people.

There have been instances where an official city body has given approval for a certain request despite the overwhelming objections of residents in the immediate area. The applicant, however, wary of the protests from neighbors-to-be as expressed at the hearing, on his own volition has withdrawn his request.

This occurred just recently when an abbreviated Planning Commission (two members were absent) gave a 3-2 vote approval for a town-house apartment complex on Virginia Ave. adjacent to a single-family zoning.

Residents in the subdivision adjacent to the proposed development attended the hearing in force and made their objections known. They indicated they also would appear and protest when the matter came before the City Council for final approval.

But before the matter could be scheduled for council action, the developer withdrew his application.

Whether the applicant will try again at a later date for council approval of the development if he feels the "climate" would be more favorable, is not the point at this time.

Our point is simply that it is extremely important at all times to learn by all available means what the people think about any issue, large or small.

We are well aware that at times selfish interests of a few individuals might color the situation. But this, too, must be weighed by the officials.

What we are trying to say is that one of the blessings of a community such as Campbell is that it is possible in most instances to get a definite feeling of the people.

This is that "home rule" bit that we maintain is the basic purpose for small cities to exist. It is that feeling of being part of a community and concerned about its future. It is a feeling that should be nurtured and expanded.

In our opinion the involvement of the citizenry in the study of this city's capital improvement program via the 64-member Citizens Advisory Committee, representing every section of the community, was one of the most forward steps ever taken in this city to get the "involvement" that is necessary if this community is to progress.

The recommendation of the program and the ceiling for the bond issue made by the committee was adopted by the City Council, for it was the citizens' program basically.

Now the same group of dedicated citizens who worked so diligently to prepare the recommendation have formed the nucleus for the "Campbell Citizens for Progress" that has been established in support of the bond issue.

The group will be expanded and it is hoped that eventually 400 or more citizens will have active roles in the bond drive.

We believe firmly and sincerely in this involvement, for in this manner all of us will have a better understanding of what is needed if this community is to move forward.

By getting "involved" many misunderstandings will be alleviated and we will move toward a common goal.

FORMATION of a new Catholic parish on the west side has been announced. The first masses were said last Sunday in the Knights of Columbus hall on W. Parr Ave. by the pastor who has been assigned to the parish, the Rev. Paul Perlite.

The bulk of the parishioners will come from St. Lucy's an estimated 900 families.

The new parish which eventually will build its facilities on McCoy at Neville, near the Forest Hills School, takes in the Los Ranchitos area of Campbell, a 10-year old subdivision.

This marks the third parish, incidentally, for Los Ranchitos. Which also must be some sort of a record.

Originally it was part of St. Lucy's but went into Queen of Apostles when that was formed a few years ago.

NAMING the new parish St. Thomas of Canterbury (remember the movie "Beckett") probably was based on good reasoning on the part of the church brass in the archdiocese headquarters who are in charge of such activities.

But, in our opinion, they got their Toms mixed up.

True the new parish takes in what is known as the San Tomas (St. Thomas) area.

But that particular San Tomas is St. Thomas Aquinos or San Tomas Aquino, an Italian, who is rated as one of the greatest philosopher's in the Church's history.

St. Thomas of Canterbury, also known as St. Thomas a' Beckett was an English martyr. He was Archbishop of Canterbury where he was murdered as a climax of a feud between him and the king of England.

There is a parish in the archdiocese called St. Thomas Aquinos (Palo Alto) so maybe the church authorities did not want to duplicate the name.

So then we wonder why they didn't let it go as St. Thomas?

We think by tacking on "of Canterbury" will tend to confuse things even more than they already are in this rather mixed up, boundary-overlapping section of the map.

IDENTIFICATION of an area (or trying to describe or give directions to it) has become an increasingly difficult task.

But San Tomas Aquino Road, San Tomas Aquino Expressway, San Tomas Aquino Creek, San Tomas School, San Tomas Village Shopping Center, have all helped in the general identification of the "San Tomas area".

LAST WEEK in this column we devoted considerable space to "unselfish" individuals (like us) who have not given up smoking because of our newly created vested interest in the various governmental agencies in the state via the additional cigarette tax.

It was that the "coffers" of this city will get $48,000 in new revenue because of the new tax.

Leeanna Meserve, who sets type via the IBM route in this joint claims that after reading our column she almost misspelled "coffers" deliberately.

She thought in this case it should be "coughers".

The prosecution rests.

should be cut by $2500 and curtailment of attendance at meetings and paper work would result in $10,000 in savings.

After the council had voted 4-1 for the tax rate and budget, Councilman Hyde said that a detailed report from the city staff on Rose's "suggestions or recommendations" would be in keeping.

"I know that if I were the city manager," Hyde said, "I would certainly want the opportunity to answer the charges that have been made."

The other councilmen agreed and City Manager Stephens said that a complete report would be forthcoming.

BUDGET

The final budget adopted by the council specified that $1,810,487 was the amount necessary to meet all municipal requirements of which $530,000 was needed to be raised by property tax on the $41,649,000 assessed valuation of property within the city

Of the $1.27 tax rate, 20 cents is for bond redemption, seven cents is for employee's pension plan and $1.00 for general purposes.

In an allied action (by unanimous vote) the council also set 15 cents per $100 as the tax rate for the Campbell Lighting District, a four cent reduction in the rate from prior years when the districts were under county jurisdiction.

OTHER ACTIONS

The council also by unanimous vote gave second reading (adoption) of the ordinance setting the $1,600,000 bond issue for capital improvements for Oct. 24 and also adopted a resolution commending the Campbell-Moreland Pony League for the record the team set in the playoffs. The team was eliminated just before the world series event.

Just before the meeting started, Police Captain Carl Arnold, standing in for Police Chief John Morgan, was presented with the pedestrian safety award by the California State Automobile Association in recognition of the fact that for the second consecutive year there have been no pedestrian deaths within the city limits.

At the tail end of the meeting Rose also took the floor to withdraw as this city's representative on ABAG (Association of Bay Area Governments) because he felt his philosophy regarding federal control had changed. Doetsch was appointed in his place.

Rose also raised the question of how well the duties of the city inspector on various construction jobs were being handled. He said that he had "heard" of a number of complaints from contractors.

He also voted no on a routine resolution reclassifying two employees into higher salary brackets as authorized under the budget.

Arrest prowler

Several juveniles in the area of Nottingham Place are credited with collaring a suspected prowler at 416 Manchester, Campbell Police report. Arrested and booked was William R. Dougherty, 33, of the Anaconda Hotel, 141 W. Santa Clara St. San Jose.

Police reported the suspect was apprehended as he ran between houses in the area, after neighbors heard glass breaking and discovered a broken window at 416 Manchester.

During the past few years, it has been necessary to use the "annex" of the church, originally built for social purposes, to accommodate those attending services. The annex provides room for about 300.

Plans call for the present church to be converted into a hall that can be used by the school, church groups and other organizations The pews have been sold and will be removed.

Dedication ceremonies for the new St. Lucy's have been tentatively set for the last Sunday in October, Father Lally said.

Carnivals aid muscular dystrophy research

Have you noticed the number of backyard carnivals being staged by kids in your neighborhood lately? There's a rash of them all over town for the benefit of muscular dystrophy. One coming up on Friday, Sept. 1, will be held at the Bill Surratt home, 982 Steinway Ave. Their son, Kevin Surratt, will be Ringmaster, assisted by Gina Bossi, David and Bob Surratt, Ken Cato, Cathy Cross, Carter Fisher, Chuck and Nancy McIntosh.

The carnival, which begins at 11 a.m. will feature games and refreshments. Three door prizes will be given. All proceeds will go to aid the fight against dystrophy and related diseases afflicting millions.

The children got the idea for staging their event while watching TV personality "Captain Satellite" Children's Show seen on Station KTVU. Last year, in cooperation with Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America, more than 12,000 Carnivals were held by children across the nation, and over $180,000 was raised for MDAA's research and patient service program.

The Surratt children will offer hot dogs, popcorn, soft drinks and cookies at their carnival along with some exciting games and feats of daring.

If your children are looking for something to do, have them attend the Surratt carnival.. it's for a very good cause!

CARNIVAL COMMITTEE--David Surratt, Chuck McIntosh, Kevin and Bob Surratt (left to right) display some of the "goodies" that will be on sale Friday morning, Sept. 1 when they stage their Neighborhood Carnival for the benefit of Muscular Dystrophy. The carnival will be held at the Surratt residence, 982 Steinway Ave.

Campbell Adult School to hold registration in San Jose Sept. 5

Campbell's Adult Education Department announces the opening of evening classes beginning Monday, Sept. 11 at six high schools in the Campbell District.

This year, registration will be held in conjunction with the Metropolitan Adult Education Program, at the San Jose Civic Auditorium on Tuesday, Sept. 5 at 6 p.m. This affords residents of all four participating districts, Campbell, San Jose, East Side and Santa Clara, an equal opportunity to register.

All persons wishing to enter the diploma or certificate program should appear at the Campbell High School Adult Center, Room 33, at 6:15 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 31 or Wednesday, Sept. 6 to take the California Achievement Test.

Anyone who can profit from the instruction and who is not required to attend "day school" is eligible to participate in adult education classes. A student fee of $1.50 per semester entitles a person to enroll in any number of classes. No fee is charged for Citizenship or English for the foreign-born.

Evening classes will be held at Campbell, Camden, Del Mar, Blackford, Leigh and Westmont High Schools. The Campbell Adult Center Office is located at 124 West Latimer Ave., Campbell, telephone 379-8850.

SHARE COSTS

In planning a four-district program of education for adults, board members and administrative officers have attempted to share total expenses of the program and provide services at a lesser cost than any single district could afford. Similarly, each resident will have a much wider selection of classes than would otherwise be available. Classes will be offered in many fields including music and art, business education, speech and drama, English communication skills, family living, industrial and vocational arts, mathematics, science, physical fitness and crafts.

Whatever their reason for learning, participants in the adult education program will benefit from the time taken away from the sofa or the television set.

GRADUATES

Seaman Recruit Michael D. Smith, USN, son of Mrs. Maxine Smith of 2856 Joseph Ave., Campbell, has been graduated from nine weeks of Navy basic training at the San Diego Naval Training Center.

with "Charlie" Gubser

Almost immediately after our constitutional government was organized the House Committee on Naval Affairs (a forerunner of the Armed Services Committee on which I serve) found that it had to tackle difficult problems in connection with military procurement and contracting.

One of the earliest cases involved Mr. Thomas Kemp, who contracted with the Navy to build two sloops of war at Baltimore. When he undertook the job the Chesapeake Bay area where he procured his timber and other materials was a free and open waterway, but then the British blockaded the upper and lower parts of the Bay for nearly a year, forcing him to pay a premium for his materials. The additional expenses soared to the tremendous sum of $6,223.12, an amount for which he requested payment in a petition to the Committee on Naval Affairs. The House Committee, in a simplicity which we all wish were still possible, informed Kemp that "when the petitioner entered into the contract, he necessarily took the chances of the rise or fall in the price of the articles necessary for its completion. If the price had fallen, the advantage would have resulted to him...and if it has risen, the loss should be his." What a far cry such simple common sense is from today's multibillion dollar "cost plus fixed fee" contracts!

The basic theme of military management and procurement hasn't changed much in almost 200 years, but a multitude of variations have been brought into play by our world-wide commitments, sophisticated weapons systems, and a staggering military budget. In the old days almost every transaction could be carefully examined without too much trouble. Today, almost 80% of total government procurement is for the Department of Defense. Of our annual defense expenditure of $75 billion, about $45 billion is for procurement of materials and services from contractors. In just one year this represents an 18% increase, and it will probably be even greater next year.

As he left the White House in January 1961, President Eisenhower warned:

"This conjunction of an immense military establishment and a large arms industry is new in the American experience...we must not fail to comprehend its grave implications. Our toil, resources and livelihood are all involved; so is the very structure of our society."

As the ranking minority member on the Special Investigations Subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, I have participated intensively in investigations of Defense contract irregularities. Considering the size of our defense establishments there is relatively little bad contracting practice, but there is still too much of it. This is why our committee has undertaken a far-reaching investigation of our procurement practices. In the past few decades a few minor repairs have been made to our procurement system, but nothing much has changed except the size of the defense bill to the American taxpayers. It is high time we examined the whole structure and determined if major repairs are not now in order.

Travelers collect memorable souvenirs

BY SALLY HOWE

Can you imagine a home entirely decorated with mementos of your travels?

Of course you can. You can picture travel folders and souvenir napkins---wait a minute---not those kind of mementos!

Souvenirs aren't necessarily what's found in a curio shop and if you are Elvera and Stanley Kipman, you're not one to go buying things when it's possible to collect them yourselves!

The Kipmans are world travelers who are presently planning to embark on a three month tour to encompass Japan, Australia and Tahiti.

The Kipmans are also collectors and from their travels they have amassed a gorgeous collection of shells, coral, seaweed, metals, and stones as well as unusual native crafts of South America and Pacific Islands.

Complete scrapbooks have been kept by Elvera Kipman, who can display them from a New York to Tokyo trip; a South Pacific tour, and South America.

Stanley Kipman has a host of interesting curios and information at his fingertips, including volcanic ash collected from recent South America eruptions, a steel drum, bits of shell and coral collected from the Barrier Reef, a kangeroo skin, a lamp made of his collection of seaweeds and small shells.

The Kipmans currently maintain an apartment in Campbell, but for many years he plied his trade as a piano tuner, and she as a piano teacher (guess how they met?) in the Saratoga area and in Oakland.

About 15 years ago they decided to start traveling and have maintained a huge world map, lined with their routes. They have found themselves adaptable to almost every climate and food, but did find the Arab diet of cucumbers for breakfast rather dreary. They seldom have dysentery, and are too busy exploring the countryside to become ill.

Sealife is their particular interest and a large display case in their home boasts coral and shells, almost all caught live by the pair.

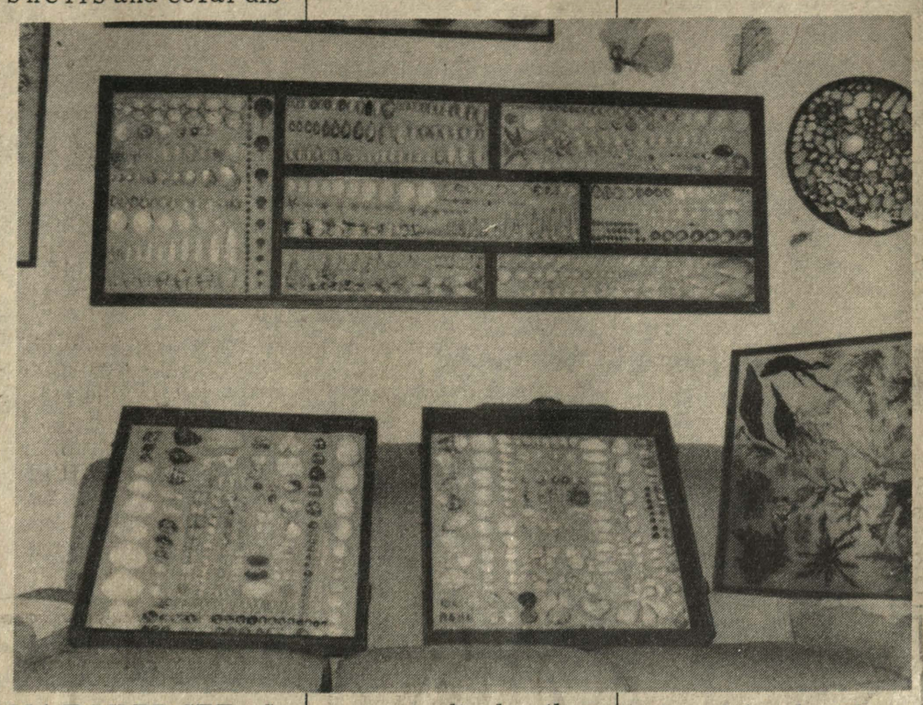
Kipman has devoted a great deal of time between travels to making matched sets of shells and displaying them to their best advantage.

Mrs. Kipman collects earrings and tiny china sets.

Their tour this fall will take them to Taipai, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Panang, Malaysia, Singapore, and on to Sidney, where they have relatives. They will then continue to Tahiti, returning home in February.

Where will they be at Christmas? "Down Under" where it will be warm and cosy.

TRAVEL TROPHIES--Elvera and Stanley Kipman of Campbell have collected most of the shells and coral displayed here on their trips to the Barrier Reef. Currently, the Kipmans are preparing to take off on a three month Pacific tour on which they'll add to their collection.



MATCHED SET--Sea shells and seaweed are mounted in special cases to display them to the best advantage. Shells are souvenirs of trips taken by Elvera and Stanley Kipman of Campbell.

New state law increases auto accident report base

Auto accident reporting required under California's 20 year old financial responsibility statutes has been materially changed by a 1967 legislative enactment, according to Department of Motor Vehicles.

"The new law raises property damage limits for the reporting requirement from $100 to $200," Verne Orr, Director of Motor Vehicles, reports. "The bill, now Chapter 547 of the '67 statutes, will become effective early in November - or 61 days after the final adjournment of the Legislature following its September short session for review of gubernatorial vetos."

The department administrator explained that the part of the 1947 financial responsibility law known as the security-following-accident provisions, required a special report to DMV on an official form within 15 days after occurrence of a mishap on a public highway, when death or injury, or "damage to the property of any one person in excess of one hundred dollars ($100)" results from the accident.

Over three-quarters of a million people have filed such reports in the past 12 months, according to a DMV report.

Gubser suggests campaign costs be revealed

Congressman Charles S. Gubser (R-Calif.) recently urged complete revelation of all financial transactions connected with campaigning for or holding public office.

In testimony delivered before the recently appointed House of Representatives Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, Gubser said. "All campaign contributions to Congressmen, honorariums, receipts from testimonial dinners and all financial transactions concerned with an officeholder's official status should be completely reported."

Gubser urged the Committee to forbid the handling of political funds by Congressmen and to require the designation of a committee or financial organization to act as a fiduciary.

In offering his views, the 10th District Congressman said, "I believe this simple regulation could do more to correct the unfortunate situations which have occupied the headlines recently than volumes of rules and regulations which would be a vain attempt to codify morality. To spell out morality in too much detail would create as many loopholes as it would restraints. Borderline incidents by the thousands would have to be interpreted and would give political opportunists and those who merely seek to harass the legislative process the opportunity to distort, misinterpret, and cast suspicion upon the Congress."

In urging a concise code with accompanying rules and regulations, the Congressman said, "if we will but heed the 67 words of the Ten Commandments, the subject of morality will be completely covered."

MORE ABOUT

New parish

parish will have 1100 registered families and individuals.

Father Perlite, a San Francisco native, was ordained on June 15, 1946 at St. Mary's Cathedral in San Francisco. Father Perlite came here from Sacred Heart in San Francisco and has also held assistant pastorates in Richmond, Alameda, Oakland and Palo Alto.

In addition to his brother, Father John Perlite, the St. Thomas of Canterbury pastor has a brother, Dr. Thomas Perlite in San Francisco and a sister, Mrs. Angela Donovan, a registered nurse who is now a housewife in Novato.

The new pastor's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John H. B. Perlite reside in San Francisco. His father is retired from the Bank of America.

Property for the proposed church site is located west of San Tomas Creek on the south side of McCoy Ave. at Neville. The house on the orchard land will be converted into a temporary parish office and rectory and the first permanent building is expected to be a parish center which will be utilized for Mass and other activities. In the meantime Masses will be said in the K of C Hall.

Father Perlite said that his intention is to have Masses said on weekdays in the homes of parishioners after the supper hour to which neighboring Catholics will be invited.

The Rev. Elwood Geary, pastor of Queen of Apostles Church, 4911 Moorpark Ave., is sponsoring a reception for the new pastor in the parish hall on Sunday, Sept. 10.

FLYING HIGH--Campbell-Moreland Pony League all-stars went all the way to the divisional playoffs, the last stop before the world series, where they were headed this season.

The C-Mall-stars journeyed by air to San Bernardino where the divisional double-elimination tourney took place. The team is pictured above with their coaches (and Air California Stewardess, Bonnie Jones, of Palo Alto), as they boarded the Air California plane for the flight to the Orange County Airport near Disneyland on their way to San Bernardino.

Westmont All-Comers hold final competition

At last Wednesday's competition Larry Hengel of U.C. took first place for the 440 with a time of 48.5 in the 18 and over age group.

Other outstanding performances were given by Jack Hansen, a Westmont High School Sophomore, who took a first in the 120 High Hurdles, the 440's, the 180 Low Hurdles, and in the 220 sprint for the 14-15 age group.

Letters to the Editor

HUMAN KINDNESS
Dear Editor;

So much has been written in the papers in the last few years of the unkindness of people to each other and of people who don't want to get involved that I feel I should write this letter. During the last few weeks I have come to not only appreciate my wonderful neighbors but also strangers.

About two weeks ago my youngest daughter (1 1/2) went into convulsions with what we later found out was chloradane poisoning absorbed through the skin. I have to admit when I saw her on the ground in a convulsion, I panicked. All I could think to do was dial operator. The operator contacted the fire department, the ambulance, and my doctor. Thank you to an unknown telephone operator! Thank you to the two unknown firemen who were so kind to a completely witless mother. Thank you to a wonderful neighbor, Mrs. Douglas Harville who came on a seconds notice and took care of my other five children and a nephew who was staying with me. Mrs. Harville stayed with the children the rest of the afternoon and even cooked supper for them.

As if this wasn't enough to show me the goodness of the people around me, just yesterday I had my six year old with me when I ran out of gas on the San Tomas Expressway. Thank you to the kind lady in the station wagon who picked us up as we walked along the expressway. Thank you also to the teen aged neighbor, Jim Langford who went down with a friend, put gas in the car and then drove it home for me.

My daughter is completely recovered now and I'm glad I had these experiences to show me the wonderful people we have in our town.

Sincerely,
Patricia M. Monahan

Classes start on September 11. Arnold J.
